1. Context

1.1. The University of Cambridge is committed to promoting the health and wellbeing of all employees. This policy and the associated guidance aim to promote supportive and effective management of absence due to ill-health (commonly known as sickness absence) and that any support is considered as early as possible.

1.2. The Sickness Absence Policy aims to maximise employee attendance while recognising that there are occasions when employees may be unable to attend work due to their own ill-health.

1.3. The purpose of this policy and associated procedures and guidance is to provide a clear framework for reporting and recording sickness absence and outlines the fair and consistent management of short and long-term sickness absence across the University. It also ensures that employees have the support they need from their managers, as well as access to support services provided by the University.

1.4. This policy should be read in conjunction with the Sickness Absence Guidance document that accompanies this policy.

2. Eligibility

2.1 This policy applies to all employees of the University of Cambridge. However, the Schedule to Statute C (statute U) Chapter IV and the Ordinances Chapter XI General regulations should also be followed for University officers

2.2 For employees holding honorary clinical contracts, sickness absence issues will be managed jointly by the University and the relevant NHS Trust.

3. Statement of Policy

3.1. The University is committed to supporting the wellbeing of its employees and providing appropriate support in relation to their health and attendance at work.

3.2. The aims of this policy are to:

- Provide employees and managers with a standard process and consistent approach for managing, recording and reporting sickness absence;
- Promote a positive culture of attendance;
- Minimise sickness absence levels and help facilitate employees' return to work;
- Offer support and assistance to staff experiencing ill-health;
- Ensure the University acts in a fair, reasonable and consistent manner when dealing with sickness absence issues; and
- Establish the roles and responsibilities of all parties involved, including employees, managers, Human Resources and Occupational Health in relation to sickness absence.

3.3. Employees who are unable to attend work due to ill-health are required to notify their manager of their absence by following the sickness absence reporting procedure, as set out in this policy (or any local reporting procedures within their Institution).

3.4. Managers should be supportive of employees when managing sickness absence and ensure that it is addressed in a caring and sensitive manner and with a fair and consistent approach, balancing the needs of individual employees with those of the University.

3.5. The University will adopt a case-by-case approach when working with employees who are absent from work due to ill-health, and, where advised, modify the approach to the specific health circumstances of each individual.

3.6. Guidance and advice should be sought from the relevant HR Business Manager or their team for any specific concerns regarding the application of the policy. Further advice on managing sickness absence is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

3.7. This policy is not contractual and may be amended through the normal University procedures. The policy is not intended to remove any existing protections or entitlements afforded to employees under their contracts of employment or collective agreements between the University and trade unions.

3.8. The roles and responsibilities of employees, managers, Human Resources and Occupational Health are explained in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

3.9. The policy seeks to ensure that sickness absence matters are dealt with sensitively and with due respect for the privacy of the individuals concerned.

4. Procedure

4.1. Sickness Absence Reporting Procedure

4.1.1. If an employee cannot attend work due to ill-health they should notify their manager (or a designated person within the Institution¹) of their absence by telephone as soon as possible on the first day of absence and, normally, before the start of their normal working day. The following details should be provided:

- The nature of the illness or injury;
- The expected approximate length of absence from work;
- Contact details;
- Whether the absence may be due to an injury at work or otherwise perceived to be related to work; and
- Any outstanding or urgent work that requires attention.

4.1.2. If an employee does not arrive at work and does not notify their manager of their absence, the manager will attempt to contact the employee, either by telephone or letter, to ensure their wellbeing. If an employee is unable to contact their manager personally, in accordance with the required sickness absence reporting procedure, they should make alternative arrangements e.g. ask a family member to call on their behalf.

4.1.3. If an employee fails to notify their manager (or a designated person within the Institution) and does not have a valid reason for not doing so, it may be treated as unauthorised absence and may be dealt with under the relevant disciplinary procedure.

4.1.4. The manager and the employee should maintain reasonable contact whilst the employee is absent from work due to ill-health, taking into account the nature of the absence. Contact between the manager and the employee will usually be by telephone, in the first instance, with the ongoing method of communication then mutually agreed.

4.1.5. Communication should focus on the employee's health and wellbeing, and their return to work including any measures to facilitate a return. Consideration may also be given to any work that requires attention in their absence. If a manager is concerned about being unable to make contact with an employee they should contact the relevant HR Business Manager or their team for advice. Further advice on maintaining contact with an employee while on sick leave is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

4.1.6. If an employee is taken ill or injured whilst at work they should report this to their manager as soon as possible. Where necessary, a first aider should be called. If medical treatment is deemed necessary, arrangements should be made to ensure the employee reaches hospital or their doctor safely. The employee's emergency contact should be informed as necessary.

¹ Local reporting procedures may apply where it is not possible to follow the sickness absence reporting procedure for operational reasons.

4.1.7. If an employee falls ill whilst on annual leave they should report this to their manager as soon as possible, even if abroad. The usual requirements for self-certification and medical certificates in this policy will apply. For a medically certificated absence, which prevents an employee from carrying out their holiday plans, it would be possible for the employee to arrange to take the annual leave at another time. However, if the occurrence of sickness occurs when the Institution would normally be closed (e.g. during the Christmas period or on a Public Holiday), the absence will be deducted from the employee's annual leave entitlement.

4.2. Submission of Self-Certification Form / Statement of Fitness for Work

Duration of sickness absence in calendar days	Documentation required from employee
Up to 7 days	Self-certification form (CHRIS 62) must be completed.
8 days or more	A Statement of Fitness for Work (or 'Fit Note') must be obtained from a doctor. A fit note will advise that either an employee is unfit for work or that they may be fit for work subject to reasonable adjustments.

4.2.1. Employees who receive a fit note stating that they "may be fit for work" should inform their manager as soon as possible. When presented with a fit note that contains specific medical advice or recommendations, the manager should discuss this with the employee and seek advice from Occupational Health. This may take place at a return to work discussion, Absence Review Meeting, or other meeting as appropriate. If the suggested adjustments cannot be implemented, the employee will remain on sick leave and a date will be set to review the situation.

4.2.2. Where there is concern about the reason for, or frequency of, the sickness absence, employees may be required to provide a fit note for each absence regardless of duration. In such circumstances, the Institution will cover any costs incurred in obtaining fit notes for absences of a week or less, on production of a doctor's invoice.

4.2.3. Further advice on fit notes and reasonable adjustments is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

4.3. Recording Sickness Absence

4.3.1. All occurrences of sickness absence, including half days, should be recorded on CHRIS by the manager or delegated administrator in a timely manner. The record should include:

- The reason for the absence (as stated on the self-certification form or fit note); and
- The length of the absence, including any half-days.

4.3.2. If an employee works part-time and is sick for all of their normal working days that week, the whole week should be recorded as sick leave on CHRIS.

4.3.3. The end date for a period of sickness absence should only be recorded on CHRIS when the individual has returned to work to prevent any overpayment.

4.3.4. Weekends, Public Holidays and rest days are included in a continuous period of sickness absence. Rest days for shift workers are treated in the same way as weekends.

4.3.5. If an employee is only eligible for Statutory Sick Pay (SSP) and is returning to work on a phased return or part-time basis, the manager should contact the relevant HR Business Manager or their team to discuss any pay implications before recording the sickness absence on CHRIS. Payroll will be able to confirm if an employee is only eligible for SSP.

4.3.6. All information recorded is held and processed in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998. Information on the Data Protection Act 1998 can be found at:

<http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/univ/information/dpa/>

4.3.7. Further advice on recording sickness absence, including what constitutes a half day, is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

4.4. Time Off for Medical Appointments

4.4.1. Reasonable requests to attend medical appointments (including dental appointments and any on-going medical rehabilitative treatment) will be granted wherever possible. While managers will try to accommodate such requests, employees should make every effort to organise their attendance at such appointments outside of their working hours where possible. Where this is not possible, every effort should be made to schedule appointments for the beginning or end of the working day. Employees will not normally be required to make up the time taken for routine medical appointments / treatment.

4.4.2. The University acknowledges that employees with on-going health conditions may require on-going treatment and time off from their work to attend medical appointments, which will be accommodated wherever possible. Employees should discuss their need to attend medical appointments with their manager as early as possible. Managers should be aware that such appointments may be difficult for employees and requests should be managed in a caring and supportive manner and additional sources of support offered as required. Further advice on sources of support is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document. There are additional considerations where the health condition may be classed as a disability under the Equality Act 2010. Guidance should also be sought from the relevant HR Business Manager or their team.

4.4.3. Where the manager has a concern about the frequency of time off requested by an employee to attend medical appointments, the presentation of appointment cards, or equivalent, may be required.

4.4.4. Occupational Health appointments will always be held during the employee's normal working day. Counselling Service appointments that have been made at the request of the University will be held during the employee's normal working day wherever possible.

4.4.5. Please refer to the Special Leave Policy for details about requesting time off for elective surgery. Elective surgery is surgery that is not considered to be medically necessary, including cosmetic procedures through surgical and medical techniques.

4.5. Occupational Sick Pay

4.5.1. The University pays occupational sick pay to eligible individuals in accordance with the tables and service requirements shown below. All payments will be inclusive of any SSP due, in accordance with applicable legislation in force at the time of sickness absence.

All Research, Academic and Academic-Related staff employed on or after 1 January 2004 and all Assistant staff irrespective of start date:

	Months 15–18	50%, subject to review

4.5.2. The amount of paid sick leave already taken at any time in the year (i.e. 365 days) immediately prior to the date on which a period of sickness absence begins will be taken into account when calculating the amount of sick pay due to you.

4.5.3. The University will pay SSP to eligible employees who comply with the relevant statutory rules relating to sickness absence. Information on SSP eligibility can be found here.

4.6. Return to Work Discussions

4.6.1. Where an employee has been absent from work due to ill-health, the manager is encouraged to hold a return to work discussion in line with their duty of care towards the employee. This is particularly important where an employee has been off sick for a number of days consecutively or the cumulative amount of absence is considered to be having an impact on the work area and service provision.

4.6.2. A return to work discussion gives the opportunity to:

- Welcome the employee back from sickness absence;
- Confirm the details of the absence and arranging for the CHRIS 62 to be completed;
- Identify any support that is required to ensure the employee’s successful return to work, including discussing any measures that may have been recommended in a fit note;
- Update the employee on work progress and events that took place during the period of their absence;
- Allow the employee to raise any concerns or questions and bring any relevant matters to the University’s attention; and
- Identify any underlying causes of the sickness absence and discussing an Occupational Health referral, if not already arranged.

4.6.3. During the return to work discussion, issues may be identified (such as those of a newly acquired disability, health condition or changed personal circumstances) that require action on the part of the University of Cambridge Sickness Absence Policy

University and/or the employee. If assistance is required in managing these issues please contact the relevant HR Business Manager or their team or Occupational Health where appropriate.

4.6.4. If the frequency, pattern or level of sickness absence is of concern, a separate Absence Review Meeting should be scheduled.

4.6.5. Further advice on conducting a return to work discussion is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

4.7. Frequent Short-Term Sickness Absence

4.7.1. Frequent short term absence refers to when an employee is frequently absent from work for short periods of time due to ill-health. This type of absence can be particularly difficult for Institutions and employees as they are usually without notice and it is difficult to plan for their impact. Whilst the University understands that employees may have some short-term sickness absence, it is essential that frequent short-term absence is dealt with promptly and consistently, with appropriate support, to ensure the smooth running of the Institution.

4.7.2. Understanding the reasons for frequent short-term absence helps identify a resolution. Referral to Occupational Health may assist this. Please refer to the Occupational Health Referral section for further details. The cause must be correctly identified in order to put in place an appropriate course of action to remedy it. Managers should also be aware that frequent short-term absence might be caused or exacerbated by factors in the workplace. If a workplace issue is identified, appropriate steps should be taken to address the factor that is contributing to the problem wherever possible. The relevant HR Business Manager or their team can provide advice where required.

4.7.3. Managers are advised to take positive steps to monitor and manage frequent short-term absences. If an employee frequently has short-term absences it may be appropriate to hold a formal Absence Review Meeting. Further advice on managing frequent short-term absence is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

4.8. Long-Term Sickness Absence

4.8.1. A prolonged period of sickness absence is considered to be long-term and the employee concerned should be invited to attend an Absence Review Meeting. Employees may be absent on long-term sick leave for a variety of reasons (e.g. injury, operation, convalescence from illness, diagnosis of a long-term disability, terminal illness etc.) and any action taken will vary according to the circumstances of the particular case.

4.8.2. The University is committed to supporting and helping employees return to work from long-term sickness absence. As part of the Sickness Absence Review Process, the University may:

- Obtain medical advice and discussing this with the employee (e.g. early referral to Occupational Health);
- Make reasonable adjustments to the workplace (e.g. working practices and working hours);
- Consider redeployment support; and/or
- Agree a return to work programme, which may include a phased return to work.

4.8.3. Employees on long-term sick leave should agree with their manager how contact should be maintained on a regular basis, for example, by telephone, email or letter. The timing and nature of contact will be appropriate to the situation of the employee and their health condition. However, employees should expect to be contacted by their manager from time to time and it is generally expected that telephone or personal contact will be made at least every four weeks. Further advice on contacting employees while they on sick leave is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

4.8.4. Where there is an indication that work related matters may have contributed to the absence, an early referral to Occupational Health will usually be made for advice on the employee's fitness for work and likely date of return. Occupational Health can offer support to the individual as well as the possibility of access to further support services to assist recovery and return to work.

4.8.5. Following a period of long-term sickness absence, a phased return to normal working hours is sometimes recommended. A phased return should normally be for a period of no more than six weeks and would be on full pay. Appropriate support should also be provided to the returning employee during this time to facilitate their return. Further advice on phased returns and the other appropriate support is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

5. Occupational Health Referral

5.1. Where medical advice is sought, such as where there has been long-term absence or repeated short absences, a referral to Occupational Health for an assessment and advice about any ill-health concerns may be necessary. This will provide specific advice regarding the management of health conditions in relation to work and any support and/or reasonable adjustments that should be considered. The benefits of and reasons for an Occupational Health referral should be discussed with the employee by the manager prior to completing the management referral form. Occupational Health will advise on fitness to work and the impact of any health problem on the employee's ability to perform their job, including any reasonable adjustments or work modifications that should be considered.

5.2. Details of the health problem and the discussion between the Occupational Health Adviser and the employee will not be disclosed to the referring manager without the specific consent of the employee. However, employees are encouraged to share relevant information about their health with referring managers to enable them to consider appropriate support.

5.3. Where an employee does not consent to an Occupational Health referral it may be necessary for the University to make decisions based on the information it has available. For further information about referring to Occupational Health please visit the website at: <http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/offices/oh/>.

5.4. An Occupational Health referral will usually be appropriate where:

- There is an indication that there are factors in the workplace contributing to the sickness absence;
- Several absences are noted for the same cause on the attendance record;
- There is a continued concern regarding short-term sickness absence despite informal discussions;
- The employee requests a referral;
- The employee has a fit note stating that they are unfit for work but does not wish to wait until the expiry of the fit note before returning to work;
- There is a case of long-term sickness absence, including the management of return to work; and/or
- There are concerns that an employee's health may lead to sickness absence (i.e. preventative advice).

5.5. If managers require support on the referral process, they should contact Occupational Health or the relevant HR Business Manager or their team.

5.6. Following an Occupational Health assessment, the employee will have an opportunity to view the report before it is issued to the referring manager and comment on any factual inaccuracies. Once the employee has given their consent for the report to be released, Occupational Health will send a copy to the referring manager.

5.7. Where a report has been obtained from Occupational Health, a meeting should be held with the employee to discuss the content of the report and any recommendations. This meeting may be held under the informal or formal stages of the Sickness Absence Review Process.

5.7.1. Further advice on Occupational Health is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

6. Disabilities

6.1. The University acknowledges that sickness absence may result from a disability. Disability is defined under the Equality Act (2010) as a physical or mental impairment that has a 'substantial' and 'long-term' negative effect on an individual's ability to do normal daily activities.

6.2. There is no automatic obligation for employees to disclose a disability or health condition to the University, although employees should inform their manager if they consider their disability and/or health condition affects their ability to undertake their work and/or poses a health and safety risk.

6.3. Where an employee chooses to disclose a disability, as defined under the Act, managers should consider and discuss the necessary support, adaptations and reasonable adjustments to the workplace or role or other aspects of working arrangements that will provide support at work and/or assist a return to work. Further advice on reasonable adjustments is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document. Reasonable adjustments may also need to be made to the application of this policy. Please also refer to the Disability and Employment Policy at <http://www.admin.cam.ac.uk/offices/hr/policy/disability.html>.

7. Sickness Absence Review Process

7.1. Conducting Informal Discussions

7.1.1. In the first instance it may be appropriate for the manager to have an informal discussion with the employee. This may arise, for example, where an employee's pattern of absence gives cause for concern or where matters discussed at a return to work discussion require further investigation.

7.1.2. Informal discussions should:

- Review the employee's sickness absence record;
- Highlight any patterns or concerns (for example, if an employee has repeated sickness absences on a Monday, Friday or following a period of authorised annual leave);
- Offer support and advice as required;
- Give the employee the opportunity to inform their manager of any health issues or any other factors which have contributed to their absence; and
- Consider any mitigating factors (for example, pregnancy or disability-related absences).

7.1.3. If appropriate, an attendance target over a specific period of time will be set. If the employee's absence levels reduce, the target is met and the desired improvement is made, no further action will be taken. However, if the employee fails to meet the agreed attendance target, it may be appropriate to hold a formal Absence Review Meeting. Further advice on setting and reviewing attendance targets is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

7.1.4. If, during the informal or formal Sickness Absence Review Process, there appears to be an underlying health issue, the manager should offer appropriate support and a referral to Occupational Health, in consultation with the employee and Human Resources.

7.2. The 3-Stage Formal Process

7.2.1. The Sickness Absence Review Process has three formal stages, with provision for an appeal at each stage.

7.2.2. Timescales for each stage will depend on individual circumstances and some sickness absence may be dealt with over a longer or shorter period than others. The point at which a manager decides to move an employee to the next stage of the Sickness Absence Review Process will vary from case to case.

7.3. Conducting Formal Meetings

7.3.1. Managers should seek to resolve sickness absence issues informally wherever possible. However, if informal action is not considered appropriate or has not succeeded in improving attendance to an acceptable level, the employee will be required to attend a formal Absence Review Meeting. Further advice on moving to the formal process is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

7.3.2. All meetings should be approached in a caring and supportive manner, demonstrating an understanding of what might be a difficult time for the employee.

7.3.3. The employee should receive at least five working days written notice of the formal Absence Review Meeting and be sent a copy of their sickness absence / attendance record, Occupational Health report (where appropriate) and any other relevant documents. The letter inviting the employee to the meeting will outline the purpose of the meeting, the date, time and location and the employee's right to be accompanied.

7.3.4. The employee may be accompanied to formal meetings by either a trade union representative or a colleague. The employee must confirm their companion's identity to the manager conducting the meeting at least two days before it is due to take place.

7.3.5. Formal meetings will be held by the employee's manager or a more senior manager and may be attended by a representative from Human Resources. In the case of a Stage 3 Absence Review Meeting, it will be conducted by the Head of Institution (or nominated deputy) and will be attended by a representative from Human Resources.

7.3.6. The employee must take all reasonable steps to attend a meeting. If the employee or their companion are unable to attend at the time specified the employee should immediately inform the manager holding the meeting, who will seek to agree an alternative time. If the employee feels unable to attend for a reason related to their health, they should inform the manager holding the meeting. Consideration can then be given to holding the meeting at a neutral venue or alternative arrangements made where appropriate, such as holding the meeting over the telephone. Failure to attend a meeting without good reason may be treated as misconduct, or may result in the meeting proceeding in the absence of the employee. Guidance should also be sought from the relevant HR Business Manager or their team.

7.3.7. During the course of a formal Absence Review Meeting, it may be decided that a further period of monitoring is necessary or additional information is required. In such circumstances, the meeting will be adjourned and reconvened at a later date. When determining an appropriate monitoring period, the manager will discuss with the employee what is considered reasonable in the circumstances, taking into account the nature of the employee's illness.

7.3.8. A decision will be made when the manager leading the meeting is satisfied that both the employee and/or their representative have had sufficient opportunity to state their case and that no further information is required.

7.3.9. The outcome of the Absence Review Meeting will be communicated to the employee verbally wherever possible. The employee will also receive written confirmation of the outcome, which will explain the reasons for the decision reached and the right to appeal. This should be provided within ten working days of the meeting (unless this timescale is not practicable, in which case it will be provided as soon as possible).

7.3.10. There is a right of appeal against a decision at any formal stage of the Sickness Absence Review Process.

7.3.11. If at any time the employee's manager considers, based on reasonable evidence, that the employee has taken or is taking sickness absence when they are not unwell, or is not following the required sickness absence reporting procedure, they may refer the matter to be dealt with under the relevant disciplinary procedure.

7.3.12. Further advice on conducting formal meetings is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

7.4. Formal Stage 1 Absence Review Meeting

7.4.1. A formal Stage 1 Absence Review Meeting may be held when an employee's absence due to sickness is of concern and informal action is no longer appropriate or has not succeeded in improving attendance to an acceptable level.

7.4.2. The purpose of a Stage 1 Absence Review Meeting will depend on the type of sickness absence being investigated but may include:

- Discussing the reasons for absence and giving the employee the opportunity to explain their absence and any mitigating circumstances;
- Where the employee is on long-term sickness absence, determining how long the absence is likely to last, taking into account any available medical evidence;
- Where the employee has been absent on a number of occasions, determining the likelihood of further absences;
- Considering whether medical advice is required, including a referral to Occupational Health if this has not already been arranged;
- Considering whether the employee has a disability that may necessitate reasonable adjustments being made in the application of the formal process;
- Considering what, if any, measures might improve the employee's health and/or attendance;
- Agreeing a way forward, any action that will be taken and a timescale for review and/or a further meeting under the Sickness Absence Review Process; and/or
- Consideration of the impact of the absence on the work area and service provision, and arrangements put in place as required.

7.4.3. Possible outcomes may include:

- Adjourning the meeting to obtain further medical evidence;
- A return to work programme, possibly with a phased return to work (where the employee has been absent for a long period);
- Issuing a First Improvement Notice setting out the required improvement in attendance (where the employee has been absent on a number of occasions). The employee should be advised that if the requisite improvement is not achieved this may result in further formal action, which may include attending a Stage 2 Absence Review Meeting; and/or
- No further action at this stage.

7.4.4. A First Improvement Notice will establish the commencement of a formal absence monitoring period and will set out any required attendance levels, the implications for not meeting those levels, the review process during the monitoring period and the employee's right of appeal against the decision.

7.4.5. A copy of the First Improvement Notice will be retained on the employee's personnel file. The First Improvement Notice will remain active for a specified period (e.g. six months) after which time it will be disregarded. Further advice on issuing improvement notices is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

7.4.6. The manager will monitor the employee's attendance during the review period. On completion of the review period, the manager will write to the employee to inform them of the outcome that either:

- The employee has met any required attendance levels set and no further action will be taken;
- Progress has been made towards meeting the attendance levels set, but they have not been achieved fully (or other factors have been present e.g. leave) and the review period will be extended or other options considered; or
- The employee has not met the attendance levels set and the matter will be progressed to the second stage of the Absence Review Process.

7.5. Formal Stage 2 Absence Review Meeting

7.5.1. A formal Stage 2 Absence Review Meeting may be held when an employee has been unable to return to work, a return to work programme has been unsuccessful or an employee's absence levels have continued to be in excess of those set out in the formal absence monitoring period and/or remain a concern.

7.5.2. The purpose of a Stage 2 Absence Review Meeting will depend on the type of sickness absence being investigated but may include:

- Discussing the reasons for and impact of the employee's on-going absence(s);
- Where the employee is on long-term sickness absence, discussing how long the absence is likely to last;
- Where the employee has been absent on a number of occasions, discussing the likelihood of further absences;
- If it has not been obtained, considering whether medical advice is required. If it has been obtained, considering the advice that has been given and whether further advice is required;
- Considering the employee's ability to return to/remain in their job in view both of their capabilities and the University's business needs and any adjustments that can reasonably be made to the job to enable the employee to do so;
- Considering whether redeployment support is appropriate and whether any adjustments can reasonably be made to assist with redeploying the employee to a suitable available vacancy;
- Where the employee is able to return from long-term sick leave, to their existing job or a redeployed job, agreeing a return to work programme; and/or
- Agreeing a way forward, action that will be taken and a time-scale for review and/or a further review meeting(s).

7.5.3. Possible outcomes may include:

- Adjourning the meeting to obtain further medical evidence;
- A return to work programme, possibly with a phased return to work (where the employee has been absent for a long period);
- Issuing a Final Improvement Notice setting out the required improvement in attendance (where the employee has been absent on a number of occasions). The employee should be advised that if the requisite improvement is not achieved this may result in further formal action, which may include dismissal;
- Consideration of other options such as redeployment support or retirement on ill-health grounds; and/or
- No further action at this stage.

7.5.4. A copy of the Final Improvement Notice will be retained on the employee's personnel file. The Final Improvement Notice will remain active for a specified period (e.g. twelve months) after which time it will be disregarded. Further advice on issuing improvement notices is provided in the Sickness Absence Guidance document.

7.6. Formal Stage 3 Absence Review Meeting

7.6.1. A formal Stage 3 Absence Review Meeting may be held when an employee has been unable to return to work, a return to work programme has been unsuccessful or an employee's absence levels have continued to be in excess of those set out in the formal stage two absence monitoring period and/or remain a concern.

7.6.2. The employee must be informed in writing that an outcome of the Stage 3 Absence Review Meeting could be dismissal.

7.6.3. The Stage 3 Absence Review Meeting will be conducted by the Head of Institution or nominated deputy who will be accompanied by a member of the HR Division. The employee's manager will also attend the meeting to provide details of the sickness absence and steps taken to address it.

7.6.4. The purpose of a Stage 3 Absence Review Meeting may include:

- A review of the meetings that have taken place and matters discussed with the employee to date;
- A review of the history of the employee's absence, its effect on the Institution and any actions previously taken to address the situation, including any support provided to the employee;
- The consideration any medical evidence obtained;
- in the case an employee remains on long-term sickness absence, considering whether there have been any changes since the last meeting under stage two of the procedure, either as regards a possible return to work, permanently reduced hours or opportunities for return or redeployment support;
- Considering any matters that the employee wishes to raise such as mitigating factors;
- Considering whether there is a reasonable likelihood of the employee returning to work or achieving the desired level of attendance in a reasonable time;
- Considering alternative options or ill-health retirement; and/or
- Considering, after all other options have been considered, the possible termination of employment.

7.6.5. Following the meeting, the Head of Institution or nominated deputy, may consider one or more of the following options (this list is not exhaustive):

- To extend a Final Improvement Notice and set a further review period (where a substantial improvement in attendance is likely within the review period);
- To consider other options such as redeployment support, ill-health retirement or other appropriate action short of dismissal;
- To dismiss on grounds of capability (ill-health); or
- No further action.

7.6.6. If dismissal is recommended, Statute C Chapter IV should be followed for established officers. For all other University employees, the decision to dismiss on the grounds of unsatisfactory attendance is made under the Sickness Absence Policy. The Director of HR should be consulted in advance of the proposed dismissal of any employee.

7.6.7. The decision will be confirmed in writing within ten working days of the meeting. The letter shall also notify the employee of their right to appeal. In the event that the decision is taken to dismiss the employee, the letter will include the reasons for dismissal, the date that their employment will terminate and the right of appeal.

7.7. Ill-Health Retirement

7.7.1. Ill-health retirement should be considered before any decision to dismiss is taken under this policy. Guidance and advice on Ill-Health Retirement should be sought from the relevant HR Business Manager or their team.

7.7.2. The option for ill-health retirement is subject to meeting the eligibility criteria set out by the relevant pension provider and advice should be sought from the Pensions Office and Occupational Health.
